CPAs who are leaders in business and industry are changing the face of corporate America by providing strategies to help lead their respective organizations to success. Blending information technology with financial decision-making and management techniques, CPAs are turning data into strategic information. Nominees should demonstrate how they:

- manage processes, technology and resources to create value
- demonstrate leadership and commitment
- act as a strategic business partner or leader
- provide vision and knowledge of broad business issues
- understand key non-financial and cross-functional measures and principals
- champion change and non-traditional methods and approaches
- demonstrate commitment and leadership in adopting technological change

Briefly describe the nominee’s qualifications for this award (attach additional sheet if necessary):
